FIVE U. S. TRANSPORTS SUNK DURING NORTH AFRICAN INVASION; INDICATES SCOPE OF OFFENSIVE AGAINST AXIS

Navy Lists Three Other Transports, One Destroyer and One Tanker Damaged — Next of Kin of Personnel Killed and Wounded Are Being Notified As Information is Received

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Indicating the scope of America's global offensive against the Axis, the Navy disclosed today that five of its transports, totaling 52,946 tons, were sunk during the North African invasion, even while the U. S. Pacific Fleet was battering the Japanese in the Solomons.

The five transports, all former well-known peacetime passenger liners, were sunk by enemy submarines early in November during landing operations off Casablanca, Rabat and Algiers. There was no disclosure of the extent of American loss of life.

In addition, the Navy listed three other transports, one destroyer and one tanker damaged. There were no reports of U. S. Warships lost in the gigantic operation.

Next of kin of personnel killed and wounded are being notified as information is received, the Navy said.

The U. S. Vessels lost and their former designations in peacetime, with tonnage, were:

The Tasker H. Bliss, formerly the President Cleveland, 12,546 tons.

The Hugh L. Scott, former President Pierce, 12,546 tons.

The Edward Rutledge, former Exeter, 9,360 tons.

The above three were sunk during landing operations off Casablanca on the Atlantic Coast of Africa.

The Joseph Hewes, former Excalibur, 9,359 tons, sunk off Rabat, capital of French Morocco.

The Ledwith, former Santa Lucia, 9,135 tons, sunk off Algiers.

Temperature Fall, Snow and Wind Give Winter Touch

Rapidly falling temperature, increasingly strong winds, and snow flurries during last evening brought a taste of real winter to this area.

The mercury, which had remained in the thirties during the day, commenced falling after three o'clock yesterday afternoon, going down rapidly through the twenties until nine o'clock last evening when it reached 19, and finally 17 at 10 and 11 o'clock.

Intense wind drove before it snow from time to time, which whitened the ground for brief periods of time. However, the precipitation, due to melting snow, as announced by the weather observatory at the plant of Rohm & Haas Company, here, totalled only .01 inch.

Travel was made somewhat difficult during the periods of snow, due to the force with which the wind drove the flakes, visibility being poor for short periods of time.

The temperature range was 20 degrees, the maximum for the period ending at eight a. m. today being at eight yesterday morning, when mercury stood at 37; the lowest being 17 at 10 and 11 o'clock last night.

ARRANGE SURPRISE

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Bristol Fire Company, No. 1, arranged a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Augustus Paul, Wood street, on Monday evening, the affair being held in the fire station. Each presented Mrs. Paul with a handkerchief and a card. She was also given a beautiful plant, a gift from the Auxiliary. A social time and refreshments were enjoyed.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sharkey, Dorrance street, in the Wagner hospital, on November 27.

Murder Mystery To Thrill Audience Friday Night

"The Mystery of the Masked Girl" will cause spine-tingling chills and provide an evening of thrilling entertainment for those who attend the stage presentation in the social hall of Bristol Methodist Church, tomorrow evening at 8.15.

Those familiar with the play and the characters are asking "Who is the Masked Murderer?" and countless more will be asking themselves that question before the three acts are completed.

The first act of this thrilling play has its setting in the room of Walter Eanes on a summer night. Act two takes place in the same setting a half-hour later; and act three has the same setting likewise but the time is midnight. The room of Eanes is located in a rooming house near a university campus.

Other questions will come crowding as the play unfolds—such as "What happened to Walter Eanes, the chemist?" "Where is the missing formula for making synthetic rubber?" "Who is the masked girl?" But the mystery will be solved before the play is brought to a close. The public is invited, tickets being on sale.

The characters are inclusive of: Mrs. Moss, who lets the room of Walter Eanes, Marion Walters; Mollie Moss, her daughter, Irene Rance; Judith Atkins, who rents the room, Charlotte Rathke; Ann Bradley, her room-mate, Sara Ellis; Hulda, who cares for the room, Louise Smoyer; other applicants for the room—Rose Lawn, Anita Marsh; Kathryn Tremayne, Margaret Wildman; Miss Pruden, Mrs. Arthur Peterson; Miss Carney, Dorothy Ritter; masked murderer, ???.

Director of the play is A. M. Hardie.

DIMOUT REGULATIONS ISSUED FOR BUCKS COUNTY AND THREE OTHER COUNTIES NEAR PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—(INS)—Dimout regulations designed to eliminate sky glow which might attract enemy bombers will go into effect in Philadelphia and four surrounding counties on December 21, it was announced today.

The regulations will protect billions of dollars worth of vital war production in an industrial area turning out every variety of weapon from shells to battleships. Suggested by the Army's Third Service Command and approved by defense councils, the program calls for:

Extinguishing of all exterior luminous signs, including advertising signs on walls and roofs and lighted billboards; extinguishing of store lights in show windows if they are "exposed to sky view"; reduction of illumination in theatre marquees so no light shall be visible above the horizontal; elimination of building floodlights and holiday and decorative outdoor lights; and shielding of lights at athletic fields, outdoor amusement places, parking lots and other open-air establishments.

Exempted from dimout for the present were all war plants and the Philadelphia Navy Yard; household lights, trolleys, buses and railway trains and maritime and aerial navigation lights. The orders cover Philadelphia and Delaware counties and most of Bucks, Chester, and Montgomery counties.

Dimout regulations sounded the death knell of night baseball in Shibe Park, home field of the Phils and the Athletics, National and American league teams respectively.

The night tilts will be banned, it was understood, because it is impossible to screen floodlights to the satisfaction of Army officials. Temple University already has abandoned plans for after-dark football next year.

Regulations for the control of lighting in certain areas are necessary for protection against damage or destruction by enemy air attacks.

In furtherance of the above objectives, the following rules and regulations are suggested for the control of

A coroner's jury last night recommended that Henry Lippens, Penn street, Philadelphia, be held for action of the Grand Jury in connection with the death of Paul Pedlow of the 5900 block of Bingham street, Philadelphia.

Lippens, who has been under bail since the accident on October 4th in which Pedlow was fatally injured, was taken before Justice Cooper, Langhorne, and his bail renewed as security for his appearance before the grand jury.

The inquisition into the death of Pedlow was held in the Municipal Building here last evening, with Bucks County Coroner, Dr. H. Clayton Moyer, presiding, and assisted by Deputy Coroner, J. Alfred Rigby, Cornwells Heights.

Lippens was represented by John Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., of Bristol; while Harry Norman Ball, Esq., of Philadelphia, represented Mrs. Pedlow, widow of the victim. The coroner's jury was composed of James H. Brooks, foreman; John Brundon, Edward Dougherty, Frank Londerbough, Bristol; Elmer Vansant, Cornwells Heights; and John Sonder, Perkasie.

The first witness called by the coroner was Deputy Coroner Rigby, who informed the jury that he had not investigated the details of the accident, but viewed the body of the victim in Harriman Hospital on November 3rd, following the death of Pedlow due to injuries sustained in the accident a month previously. Mr. Rigby said he was advised of Pedlow's death by a

Criminal Court Ends Sessions; Only Few Cases

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 3.—The shortest criminal court session in Bucks county in many years ended yesterday after two days of grand jury and two days of trial court during which time a majority of the defendants pleaded guilty.

Joseph Martin, Philadelphia gasoline truck driver, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to driving a truck while drunk on the Lackawanna Trail on October 26th, near Pipersville, when he was arrested by Pvt. Marks, of the Doylestown Motor Police sub-station. He was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended prison sentence of 20 days to one year on condition that the fine and costs be paid within 20 days.

Martin told the Court that he had drunk "two beers" with his lunch and started out with his truck. The gasoline fumes aggravated his unsteady condition, he told the court. Judge Keller told Martin that a "lot of two-beer cases have been before the court in recent years and all have been doubtful stories."

"Two beers will not make you intoxicated," the Court reminded Martin, who lost his job with the oil company as a result of his arrest.

Two divorces were granted yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks county. Ethel K. Lippman, 116 East Broad street, Quakertown, was granted a divorce from Samuel V. Lippman, Hartford, Conn., on grounds of desertion. They were married in Allentown on June 9, 1935.

A divorce was also granted to Emma C. McDonnell Ingram, of 343 Gardiner street, Bristol, from Earl J. Ingram, of 3224 F street, Philadelphia, on grounds of desertion. They were married in Bristol, on June 30, 1923.

TURNING OUT THE GOODS

In the construction of war machines, emphasis seems to be shifting lately from the airplane to the ship.
This does not mean that the argument of ships versus planes has been settled in favor of the former, for most of us realize by this time that victorious wars must be fought on the seas, in the air and on land. A year ago, the first great demand was for planes, planes and more planes.
The nation is getting them.

The need for ships and more ships is just as important. It is encouraging to learn that they are being provided, too. When it is remembered what a tremendous maritime tonnage was necessary to take the Allied armada to the African coast, it is clear how vital to the war effort is the American ability to turn out merchant ships and warships in record time.

Record time in this connection is a vague term for the average lay man. Accurate realization of what the phrase means came when the Robert E. Peary, a 10,500-ton product of a West Coast shipyard, was launched four and two-thirds days after work on its keel began.

This is not the only example of speed in maritime construction, for the figures of total tonnage completed so far this year are impressive. When the American shipbuilding program for the war was first formulated it called for 12,000,000 tons of merchant ships to be built in 1942 and 1943. Since then the program has been revised upward.

Now it is expected that the two-year effort will produce 24,000,000 tons. So far this year 8,000,000 tons of merchant ships have gone down
the ways. The government is confident that the yards will turn out the required 16,000,000 tons additional next year.

As the first year of war for the United States ends, American planes are blasting the Axis in every part of the world. American tanks are doing their part in the fight.
There are still bottlenecks and tangles of red tape in the production field. But American industry is proving once again that it can turn out the goods.

HITLER-WHIPPED CREAM

When the Hitler handwriting was on the wallpaper that Austria would be taken over by the Nazis, the people of that country, particularly those in Vienna, expressed fears that they would be allowed no more whipped cream for their coffee. I turned out that their fears were needless, because it was not long before the European war began and the Austrians got neither whipped cream nor coffee.

When a man like Hitler is believing that other nations and attempts to impose his rule on the world, it turns out that people fighting him are reduced in many ways to the low estate marked on for nations that fall under his control.

Thus the American people are now to be forced to get along without whipping cream. A WPB official says the ban on this product will relieve the most critical butter shortage in the last ten years and will relieve fluid milk shortages in most sections of the country.

Most Americans never got into the habit of using whipped cream in coffee, so they are not being reduced to the state of subjugated Austrians.
Americans will still have their coffee cream and they will have some coffee, at least a cup a day.

GOLDEN LADY by Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Darnley gave her attention to the breast of guinea hen. She looked up after a moment. "Isn't there such a thing as family life in New York?
People do marry and live somewhere, don't they?"

"It has been done."
"But almost everybody one meets spends their noons and their evenings in restaurants or night clubs or theaters."

"Don't you like it?"
"As a novelty—yes. As a permanent thing it would pall on me."
"It does pall," said Chico, "but what else is there to do? It becomes a habit."

"But you—and similar men," Darnley continued, "You have plenty of money. You have position. Why don't you marry and—oh, have a different sort of a life?"

"I did marry," replied Sanson.
"Everybody does it once. For six years I've been doing First Nights and cafes. She won't divorce me and I can't divorce her." His voice changed and became lower in tone.
"So I took up celebrity collecting."

"I'm sorry," Darnley said.
"No need to be. So, you see, I can't marry again." He smiled wryly. "There is such a thing as loneliness. Oh, I know what you're thinking—that I don't need to be lonely.
I've thought of it. Naturally. But I've never yet run across just the right girl."

Darnley did not speak.
"I've found out from my own experience and from watching my friends that maybe there could be happiness outside of marriage.
But," he hesitated a little, "but there would have to be a pretty perfect love, don't you think?"

"I'm just an innocent girl from the country," parried Darnley.
"Most of these affairs are bargain and sale," said Chico. "I wouldn't like that. I would have to worship her and she would have to adore me. Then I'd be willing to go off the deep end with trust funds or annuities or whatever would be needed to make her secure."

Darnley wondered if this were an oblique proposition; but she did not think so. She was rather sorry for Sanson. He was a bit pitiful.

Darnley chose to change the subject. "When do you start the search for the Golden Blend Girl?" she asked.

"Officially? It will be announced in two weeks. There—there are things going on—certain changes in plans and—er—in personnel," he said. "We are not quite ready."

She understood as he could not know that she understood. It was the taking away of the advertising account of the International Tobacco Corporation from Hatch & Miller, and the bestowal of it upon some other agency. She was convinced that it was a part of the intrigue concerning this matter that had caused Henry Garden to pay her a hundred dollars for each evening she spent with Sanson.

She wondered what Chico Sanson
would think of her if he knew it;
what he would do, what he would say. This reflection caused her acute discomfort, for she found herself liking the man and unwilling to forfeit his good opinion.

Of one thing Darnley was convinced: She would be guilty of no treachery toward Sanson. She would not allow herself to be used, but would use those who were trying to make a cat's-paw of her.

"You see," said Sanson, "we spend a tremendous sum in advertising. We have to have the best brains, the best advisers, to get adequate returns from it."

"You mean the advertising agency that handles your account?" she
asked.

"Exactly," he said.
Presently they left the table and stepped into Sanson's town car. The chauffeur drove them to the theater, where all was agog. The sidewalk was crowded with sight-seers, autograph fiends, cameramen.

"Please, Mr. Sanson! Please . . .
Just a second . . . May I have the lady's name also . . . Oh, Miss Car-fax." The newspapermen grinned at her amiably. If only Grandpa Carfax—all her home town—could see her at this moment! It was gorgeous! Heavenly! Perfect!

Darnley thought she never had seen so discouraged a young man as Clyde Farrish seemed to be. His hair, never neat, was tousled by fingers that had run and run through and through it. His eyes were weary. Yet, for all of it, he seemed somehow younger, more boyish than ever before.

"Lawyers," he remarked, and shrugged.

"The sable coat?" asked Darnley.
"I surrender," he said. "The whole studio, lock, stock, and barrel, won't pay for a small part of it if they sell me out."

"But they've got to give you time
—give the police time to hunt for it," she said.

"Oh, they're quite decent about it. But what's the use? I'm all for giving them the key to the place and walking out."

"How," asked Darnley, "could that coat have been gotten out of this place? Have the police no idea?"

"They don't say so," he said, "but their idea is that I got away with it somehow—probably with your help.
They've looked into my affairs.
They know I'm shaky. I suppose it's a natural suspicion."

"Why," asked Darnley, "is your business shaky?"

"Because we're in a depression,"
he said.

"Is every commercial photographer in a bad way?" she asked.

"Some of them seem to be getting along all right."

"Why then and not you?"
"How should I know?"
"Have these other studios better cameras and equipment than yours?"

"Then where is their advantage?"
"They can sell their stuff. I can't."

"Why?"
"Quit pestering me," Clyde said irritably. "I'm a flop. I haven't got what it takes to compete."

"You wouldn't happen to be a quitter, would you?"
"What's it to you if I am?" he demanded with a sudden flare of temper.

"Less than the dust," she said.
And then, "Grandpa Carfax says
when you're puzzled about a thing always go back and look at its elements. Lay them in a row, and see if you can put them together better."

"You talk too much," demurred Farrish.

"The first element," Darnley said,
"is: Are you morally liable for that coat?"

COMMUNICATION

December 1, 1942

Editor, The Bristol Courier.

Dear Sir:
I am taking the liberty of writing this letter in what I think is in the behalf of the men in our service. To be as brief as possible I will outline this plea, as I call it, to you in as few words as possible.

The men in our armed forces are praised in words and deeds and by flags and cheering. We are still in this fight and are striving to preservour American way of life. In the last war the men were given, I believe, $6 when they returned to the United States. Now in this war very little is being done about the return of these men after the war. Wouldn't it be a square and honest proposition to begito think what they have to return to after they come back? Promises are easy to make and as you surely must realize will be very hard to keep after the war is won.

My suggestion would be that each community take care of their return in this manner. Start now to collect money from our citizens until the end of this war. These moneys shall be distributed to the men each week after their return until they are financially able to help themselves. Even if they are able to provide for themselves this money should be given them for a bonus as appreciation from the community who stayed home and lived a somewhat normal life. We the people owe this to these brave and courageous men
I am sure that each person could well afford at least a dollar a week to this worthy cause. The people chosen to collect these moneys must be without political ambitions or otherwise, and also not paid one penny of this money for records or bookkeeping. This is not to be looked upon as a charity but as a debt we owe these men.

Please let's pay our debts.

Very respectfully,

A READER

Good Kitchen Soldiers Make Skillful Use of Left- Overs In All-Out Campaign Against Food Waste

One way you can do your bit in the Government's all-out campaign against food waste is to serve left-overs so tempting and appetizing that they will be devoured to the last crumb.

When you tackle the assignment of glamorizing refrigerator left-overs in to eye appealing, appetizing main dishes, it's always a winning strategy to call on quick-cooking tapioca for help. Croquettes are efficient meat-extend-ers that will rate equally high on the score of taste appeal if you use tapioca as a binder. By holding moisture, tapioca can be counted on to work wonders in keeping the croquettes tender, juicy and shapely.

You'll find that the same tapioca magic works with omelets and souffles, too. They have real party glamour and at the same time work wonders in stretching a limited amount of meat. The big objection to souffles as company dishes used to be their temperamental tendency to slump. But nowadays, by using quick-cooking tapioca, even a beginner cook can count on serving a perfect souffle every time.

Thrifty Souffle

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup left-over soup, of consistency to serve
1 cup cooked well-seasoned chopped vegetables or meat
3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.
Combine quick-cooking tapioca, salt and soup in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add vegetables or meat. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 minutes, or until souffle is firm. Serves 6.

Chicken Croquettes

3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced pimiento
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup chicken stock
1 1/2 cups chopped cooked chicken
Sifted bread or cracker crumbs
1 egg, beaten with 3 tablespoons milk and dash of salt
Combine quick-cooking tapioca, salt, paprika, green pepper, pimiento, milk and stock in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and mix thoroughly. Chill. Shape into cones. Roll in crumbs, dip in egg mixture, then roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat (350 degrees F.) 1 minute, or until golden-brown. Drain. Makes eight.

Two Timely Desserts

Here are two desserts that are not only in step with the economic trend of today but are seasonable as well.

If you are looking for healthful, delicious desserts that comply with this

A Poetic Relish

By Frances Lee Berton

A horse radish relish
Is the thing to embellish
A dish of cold meat

Horse-radish Relish

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin;
1 cup hot water; 1 tablespoon vinegar; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon scraped onion; 1/4 cup stained prepared horse-radish; 1 cup cream, whipped.

Dissolve gelatin in hot water.
Add vinegar, salt, and onion. Chill.
When slightly thickened, fold in horse-radish and cream. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Serve with baked ham or cold meat. Serves 10.

season of the year and also do not tax your sugar ration coupons too heavily, the recipes for the relish-custards below will prove particularly desirable.

No eggs, no baking and no boiling are necessary, and desserts of this kind provide a very excellent method of supplying milk to the younger members of the household who dislike drinking plain milk.

Pumpkin Rennet-Custard

(Serves 5)
1/2 cup plum butter
2 cups milk, not canned
1 cup canned pumpkin
1 package vanilla rennet powder
4 tablespoons brown sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 teaspoon salt

Divide plum butter among 5 dessert glasses, placing about 2 tablespoons in the bottom of each. To the milk, add pumpkin which has been thoroughly mixed with brown sugar, spices and salt. Follow directions on package vanilla rennet powder and pour while still liquid into dessert glasses on top of plum butter. Do not move until firm—about 10 minutes. Chill in refrigerator. Just before serving, sprinkle with grated blanched almonds.

Mince-meat Rennet-Custard

1 rennet tablet
1 tablespoon cold water
1 pint milk, not canned
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup mince-meat
Make rennet-custard according to directions in package, adding sugar and mince-meat to the milk. Chill, then serve.

Feature Fish Surprises

With the bugaboo of meat rationing disturbing our dreams, and high meat prices disturbing our budget, dishes calling for fresh water fish, salt water fish or shell fish are very intriguing.

You will be surprised to find how many delightful dishes may be prepared from the humble shrimp. You'll be both surprised and pleased with the added tang secured from the added lemon juice. Try the following delicacies which call for both the flavorful shrimp and the healthful lemon:

Shrimp Cocktail

1/2 cup catsup
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon horseradish
1/4 teaspoon salt

3 drops Tabasco sauce
1 can large shrimps (5 1/4 ounces)
Lettuce
6 small paper cups (2 inches in diameter)

Combine all the above ingredients except the shrimp and lettuce. Line cocktail glasses with lettuce. Place 2 tablespoons of the sauce in each small paper cup, then place cup in the center of the lettuce in the cocktail glass. Arrange three large shrimp around the outer edge of each.

Macaroni Salad Luncheonette

2 cups cooked macaroni
1 large can shrimps
1 avocado
2 hard-cooked eggs
Juice of one large lemon
1 cup mayonnaise
Paprika
Put cooked macaroni in a colander

and pour cold water through it to separate it thoroughly. Remove black outer line from shrimp and cut in two. Peel avocado and dice, also dice the whites of the cooked eggs. Moisten the yolks of eggs with lemon juice and mayonnaise. Stir the whole together and serve on lettuce leaf, topping each portion with a spoonful of mayonnaise liberally sprinkled with paprika.

kation at San Francisco, Calif., that her son had "arrived safely at his destination," but it did not indicate where.

At the same time, Mrs. Mary Trauch, Doylestown, received word from the Port of Embarkation in San Francisco, Calif., that her son, W. Lester Trauch, had also "arrived safely at his destination," but it also did not state his location.

Although weather conditions this Fall were not too favorable, Bucks county farmers, according to County Agent William F. Greenawald, Doylestown, by this time have harvested about 75 per cent of their corn crop.

The average yield, it has been estimated, was about 65 bushels to the acre, and this was considered to be quite good.

Vegetable growers last week took advantage of the good weather, and at that time they cleared up a large percentage of the root crops, including carrots, rutabagas, and beets.

Celery, which had been left in the fields, was frozen. The truckers lost very little time in salvaging it. Knowing that after it was frozen it would not keep in storage, they immediately placed it on the market.

According to Mr. Greenawald, about 65 per cent of the soy bean crop in the county has been harvested, and a number of the farmers have marketed it. The water content of the beans harvested in the county was about 16 per cent, and this resulted in the beans being placed in No. 3 grade. In order to qualify for the No. 2 grade, the moisture content must not be over 14 per cent.

It is expected many of the farmers will buy back the soy bean meal to serve as poultry and dairy feed.

Wheat that was seeded late in the Fall got a rather poor start and as a result does not look too good, but that which was seeded early appears to be doing well.

Four Enemy Cargo Ships, 2 Destroyers Sunk By British

London—Destruction of four enemy cargo ships and two destroyers in a "spirited" Mediterranean sea battle was announced by the Admiralty today as Nazi tank forces in Tunisia were sent reeling back by concentrated Allied artillery fire.

In announcing the new naval battle, which occurred shortly after midnight Tuesday, the Admiralty disclosed loss of the new British destroyer Quentlin, which with the cruisers Aurora, Sirius and Argonaut and the destroyer Quiberon, engaged the enemy convoy.

The enemy ships were bound for Tunisia to reinforce Axis detachments there.

American and British Forces Advance in Tunisia

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—Under cover of a heavy barrage from ships of the Royal Navy firing from vantage points in the Mediterranean, American and British forces advanced slowly against heavy opposition in Tunisia today.

Entry of the British Fleet into the fighting indicated the growing fierceness of the struggle, whose pace is increasing as heavier Allied ground forces arrive at the scene of action in a steady stream.

American medium bombers, escorted by Lockheed Lightnings, again plastered the El Aouina airfield at Tunis yesterday, catching upwards of 50 large Axis transports and bombers on the field and blasting hangars, fuel dumps and ammunition stores.

taken one drink of whiskey on the morning of January 19, 1942, before starting out to show his new samples. He mixed the whiskey with a bromo, he said, because he was not feeling well that morning. He contended that he was not drunk as he drove from Ambler to a spot between Selersville and Quakertown on the Bethlehem pike, where the accident happened.

Ebersole was hurt in the accident and was taken to the Grand View Hospital, Sellersville, where a physician treated him for his injuries and examined him for intoxication. The doctor said that he did not think the case was one of exaggerated intoxication. Corporal Chester Reitz, of the Quakertown Motor Police sub-station, testified that in his opinion the man had been drinking.

Judge Boyer directed that Ebersole pay $100 in lieu of a fine, to the county of Bucks, pay the costs, and refrain from drinking during a one-year probationary period.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O Lord, our God, hear us as we speak to Thee! We are grateful for the privilege of prayer; for the opportunity of opening our hearts for the outpouring of thy Spirit; for the opportunity of placing before thee our needs and the desires of our hearts. Help us to preserve our Christian heritage. Help us to give of our very selves that the religion of Jesus Christ might be preserved and His Kingdom advanced throughout the world. Through Jesus Christ we pray. Amen.

—the Town Too Tough to Die." The picture comes today to the Bristol Theatre. Packed with action, the new film re-creates the days of the old Southwest.

Among the Russian leaders shown in the feature film, "Moscow Strikes Back," which will be seen at the Bristol Theatre for three days starting today, are Premier Joseph Stalin, Marshal Timoshenko, General Zhukov, General Rokossovsky, Golikov, Boldin and Byelov.

GRAND THEATRE

One of the most tender and moving stories ever presented on the screen opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre. It's the picturization of "The Pied Piper."

Dramatically telling the touching story of a group of child refugees who are sheltered from occupied France to Britain and safety by a gruff Englishman (Monty Woolley), the picture has in abundance those elements which so to make up a great film—breath-taking pathos—rich humor and tense adventure.

It is a magnificent salute to the stalwart fearlessness that is in some men as well as to the simple faith that lives in the heart of all children.

nurse at the Harriman Hospital, and that Dr. George T. Fox had told him the cause of death was multiple fractures and shock.

Dr. Fox, of the Harriman Hospital, was the next witness, and described in detail the compound fractures of both lower and upper legs sustained by Pedlow. He said that he had amputated both legs of the victim at the same time, and described to the jury the location of the fractures. He said that Pedlow's health previous to the accident was excellent, as he was acquainted with him.

Private Leibergal, Pa. Motor Police, South Langhorne barracks, told the jury that he and Private Sawyer while patrolling had "come upon the scene." The officer said that he had taken Lippens into custody, and had him examined by Dr. J. Fred Wagner. A statement by Dr. Wagner was then read to the jury in which the physician said that Lippens was under the influence of intoxicating liquor and not in condition to operate a motor vehicle.

operated by Lippens, and pinned against the rear bumper of the Haffner car.

Jones said there was a light on the porch of his residence which was bright enough to show motorists that cars were parked along the roadside.

William Klink, Philadelphia, told the jury he was standing with the group to the rear of the Haffner car, and that Pedlow was about in the center, one or two feet away from the car. The witness said that Pedlow was nearer the edge of the shoulder of the road than the outside lane, and that the impact of the car crushed Pedlow's legs against the rear bumper of the Haffner car.

Richard Jones, Bridgewater, who had just left the Haffner car previous to the accident, told the jury that he was on the bank alongside of the Haffner car. He said two wheels of the machine were on the shoulder of the road and two on the dirt. He said he saw a car approaching, could not judge its speed, that the porch light was on at his residence, and that when he first saw the approaching car it was about 50 feet away. He hollered for the men to jump. Haffner went toward the middle of the roadway, and Pedlow toward the dirt. Jones had a flashlight in his hand at the time, and said there was ample illumination from the porch light to show the cars parked along the road.

Lippens, upon the advice of Attorney Kiloynce, claimed his constitutional rights to immunity, and declined to testify.
